

MAC Source Communications to Relocate to Downtown Cohoes

Release Date: January 16, 2008

MAC Source Communications Relocates:

Move Marks Growth in Local Division of Company

By mid-January, MAC Source Communications will be new residents to the City of Cohoes, New York. The move accommodates recent growth within the telecommunications company and enables MAC Source Communications to better serve the ever-growing customer base in the Capital Region. MAC Source chose Cohoes for the new office location because of the recent renovations and improvements occurring in the city.

Sales Director Tom Donahue says that the move is essential to accommodate the growth of the company and at the same time provides us with a more central point in the Capital Region to provide superior services to our customers. The new office includes a demo room where the customers will have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience and have the ability to interact with the latest technology offered by MAC Source.

The new office will be located at 122 Remsen Street, Suite 102, Cohoes, NY 12047.

About MAC Source Communications:

MAC Source Communications, an Avaya Platinum Business Partner, is the largest Upstate New York telecommunications provider. MAC Source Communications offers expert business communications applications consulting and IP telecommunications system design, installation, and management services. The company was founded in 1997 and is headquartered Syracuse, New York. In the past 10 years, MAC Source has grown from one office in Syracuse to additional offices in Rochester, Buffalo, Albany, and Deerfield, Illinois. Currently MAC Source employs over 80 people, including account executives, network engineers, certified technicians, customer service representatives, etc.